

Kyle's Testimony

There was a time in my life when I believed I was too far gone to ever change. Addiction had taken everything from my peace, my purpose, my relationships, and nearly my life. I knew what it was like to wake up every day feeling trapped, ashamed, and convinced that there was no way out.

I wasn't just struggling with addiction; I had lost hope. I carried guilt, made painful mistakes, and hurt people I cared about. There were moments when I questioned whether my life had any value at all.

But even in my darkest moments, God never gave up on me.

Little by little, He began changing my heart. Recovery wasn't instant, and it wasn't easy. It took honesty, humility, faith, and a willingness to let God rebuild what addiction had destroyed. Through His grace, I discovered that my past didn't have to define my future.

Today, I stand as living proof that people can change. No matter how broken someone feels, there is hope. There is healing. There is freedom.

My greatest desire is to use everything I've lived through to encourage others who feel forgotten or hopeless. If my story can help even one person believe they are worth fighting for, then every step of my journey has had a purpose.

I am not proud of every chapter of my past, but I am grateful that God used those chapters to shape the person I am becoming. My story is no longer about addiction, it is about redemption, hope, and the power of a life transformed.
